The church is distinguished by its picturesque silhouette and rich colorful decoration. The façade is lined with ceramic tiles and colored glazed bricks.

GDANSK (GDYNIA), POLAND

Enter Gdansk from its gateway port of Gdynia and discover one of the oldest, most important and beautiful cities in the Baltic. Gdansk was once the nation's chief trading hub as well as its cultural center. 90% of the city was destroyed during World War II, but its architectural gems have been restored in great detail, reserving its place in history.

Malbork Fortress

The largest feudal castle in Europe, it was built by Teutonic Knights and turned into the King's Palace in the 13th century. Malbork survived all onslaughts until the end of World War II, when nearly half the structure was destroyed. Painstaking reconstruction brought back the awesome citadel of today.

St. Mary's Church

This medieval masterpiece is the largest brick church in the world, capable of seating close to 25,000 worshippers and home to the touching Madonna of Gdansk statue from the 15th century.

Berlin (Warnemunde), Germany

Once considered just a quaint fishing village at the mouth of the Warnow River, Warnemunde emerged in the 20th century as Germany's fifth largest maritime center for all of Germany's shipping, shipbuilding and fishing industries. This port city is also the gateway to the great city of Berlin and its history, culture and attractions.

This gate was the central crossing point between east and west when the Berlin Wall divided the city into two. Its elegant columns, classical friezes and historic statuaries, once pitted by war and neglect, have all been restored.

The Reichstag

The Reichstag building in Berlin was constructed to house the Reichstag, the first parliament of the German Empire. It was opened in 1894 and housed the Reichstag until 1933, when it was severely damaged in a fire. The building remained in ruins until the reunification of Germany, when it underwent reconstruction. After its completion in 1999, it became the meeting place of the modern German parliament, the Bundestag.

The sweeping, tree-lined Unter den Linden Strasse, with its luxury hotels and chic cafes, is one of Berlin's finest shopping venues, full of boutiques, galleries and a wide variety of gift shops.

Helsingborg, Sweden

During the Middle Ages, Helsingborg was an important Danish town, as a military base and administrative center for northern Skåne. In later years, the town suffered and fell into decline due to the constant wars between Denmark and Sweden. And it wasn't until their industrial revolution at the beginning of the 19th century that Helsingborg began to turn around, and a new era based on technology, innovation and enterprise began. The harbor was expanded, industries were established and railways constructed, and the town's population increased dramatically. Today it's a bustling port and northern hub in the dynamic Öresund region.
